III. Answer all questions following a passage on the basis of what is stated or implied in the passage. (共 10 题，每题 2 分，共 20 分)

[A] Our M.S. Jensen EXPLORER is not an ordinary cruise ship. It was built for the purposes of exploration. Its shallow draft allows us to explore remote islands not available to other cruise ships. Inflatable Zodiac rafts will land us on previously inaccessible beaches.

Even though the EXPLORER is relatively small, it still accommodates ninety-two passengers with all the comforts expected aboard a modern cruising vessel. We have a Lido deck with a swimming pool, comfortable lounges, and spacious cabins. And although the air is warm, soft, and inviting in these tranquil waters, the ship is full air-conditioned. Each expedition carries an expert staff of naturalists, anthropologists, and diving instructors.

26. What makes the EXPLORER an unusual cruise ship?
(A) its safety equipment
(B) its accommodations
(C) its name
(D) its structural design

27. What are the passengers most likely interested in?
(A) competitive diving
(B) astrology
(C) nature study
(D) sailing

28. What kind of weather is expected on the trip?
(A) thick fog
(B) clear and chilly
(C) frequent rainstorms
(D) warm and sunny
29. How will passengers get to unexpected beaches?
   (A) by diving
   (B) by raft
   (C) by swimming
   (D) by airplane

30. What feature of the cruise is NOT discussed?
   (A) the employees
   (B) the food
   (C) the bedrooms
   (D) the recreational facilities

[B]
In spite of a dizzying array of reforms since Raul Castro took the helm of Cuba’s government, the year of 2008 looks to be a record year for emigration, as inhabitants abandon the communist island in droves. In the first half of the US fiscal year, which began on October 1, almost 3,000 Cubans tried to reach US shores by crossing the shark-infested Florida Straits. The number represents a 21 percent increase over the previous year. Some Cubans are abandoning the island of some 11 million inhabitants legally; others leave illegally, crowded on smugglers’ fast boats. Almost all are heading to the islands nearby arch-enemy, the United States. Illegal emigrants—who are returned to Cuba by US authorities if picked up at sea, but get to stay in the United States if they reach US soil—are joined another 20,000 Cubans to whom the US Interests Section grants legal immigrant visas here every year, under the immigration accords Havana and Washington struck in 1994 and 1995.

31. What is the main point of this passage?
   (A) Many Cubans regard the US as their enemy.
   (B) Many Cubans try their best to immigrate to the US legally or illegally.
   (C) Many Cubans like to go traveling by smugglers’ fast boats.
   (D) Raul Castro wants to abandon the island of some 11 million inhabitants legally.

32. Since Raul Castro took the helm of Cuba’s government,
   (A) a series of dizzying reforms have been done.
   (B) few dizzying reforms have been done.
   (C) none dizzying reforms have been done.
   (D) challenging dizzying reforms have been done.

33. If illegal Cuban emigrants are picked up at sea,
   (A) they get to stay in the United States.
   (B) they cross back through the Florida Straits.
   (C) they will be returned to Cuba.
   (D) they get some money and leave the United States.

34. The passage implies that
   (A) many sharks often appear in the Florida Straits.
   (B) some sharks die in the Florida Straits.
   (C) a lot of sharks survive in the Florida Straits.
   (D) more and more sharks hate the Florida Straits.

35. What is the possible population in the island country, Cuba?
   (A) Less than 10 million.
   (B) About 10 million.
   (C) About 5 million.
   (D) More than 10 million.

Multiple assessments and alternative assessments are related and often used interchangeable, but they are different in their background and definitions. The concept of alternative assessments is advocated to differentiate the application of traditional tests. Because traditional standardized tests can not meet the need of assessing students’ language proficiency and learning results in the language skills, alternative assessments, which denote a variety of practical and useful assessment activities and tasks different from the traditional pencil-and-paper tests, are therefore suggested. Although there are many alternative assessment measures in language field, no single assessment is able to cover students’ learning progress in the four language skills and affective and attitude goals. As a result, the application of multiple assessments is encouraged.
